The Way of Peace ... The violence continues ... force and intimidation continues ... clubs, horses, dogs, and bulletproof vests are standard crowd control equipment but this is not the way of peace. A small group of people wearing black t-shirts with the white letters "No More Violence" on the front and "a message from God on the back is having a big impact. Using God's Word and a commitment to show love and respect to those that appear to deserve little, the men and women in this group are able to do what force cannot. The crowds respect this small band of messengers. The police stand back and appear more as observers than participants in the control of the over exuberant fans.

Every Saturday kids from the area eagerly come to Emanuel for a special time. At the church, classes are held teaching them the way of peace. Kids are given the message from God ... No More Violence. Members of the No More Violence Team do this because the kids believe there can be change.

This is the plight of the Native Argentine Criollo ... a group of people that many Argentines would prefer to keep hidden in the rural areas. Easily identified by their horse carts, the Criollos can be seen hauling trash, sweeping the street,

To the Heart of the Peoples ... It is not easy being an active Christian among the diverse political, economic, and religious backgrounds found at the National University of Córdoba. At this University, the 100,000 students are largely indifferent to religious teachings in general and view Christianity, at best, as a superfluous tradition.... Students, however, aren't the problem ... they're the harvest!

The University of Córdoba has become, once again, a missionary training school. The students ministering here need your help. They need you to pray. ... They need you to come and work alongside them and become a missionary in training too.

An opportunity is now open for you to live in Córdoba studying Spanish in order to complete your degree requirements ...earning full credit ... while at the same time, participating in what God is doing among the students in Córdoba.

A True Change in Life and Heart ...The professionals of Buenos Aires might look like your affluent next-door neighbor. Their appearance of confidence could fool you into believing that this person "has it all together." A closer look, however, into the eyes often reveals the anger, fear, despair, loneliness, helplessness or disillusionment that is hiding within this exterior. Because of the importance of "image", the typical professional finds it very difficult to express or admit to any need ... spiritual or physical ... but these people are NEEDY!

Bridges to Over There ... “See that villa over there? It is the most dangerous in the area. DO NOT drive through here at night! Not even the edge like we are now. I sometimes hesitate to go through in the daytime. If you don’t live there, you must stay away.”

Life Along the Rio Paraná ... In name, Argentina is a Christian nation but a sense of hopelessness has invaded the country. Roman Catholicism is the official religion with enormous Catholic churches and yet only 15% of her people attend any type of church. Those that are involved have a very strong devotion to Mary and other saints and folk heroes. Every town and neighborhood has its own statue or shrine of its favorite saint. Many public events take place around the shrine. Even the public roadside signs on the highway ask that the Virgin of Lujan guard its travelers. Argentina is a land filled with idolatry, unusual folk religions, and superstitions.

In the middle of the economic and spiritual crisis, There is Life in Jesus ... “Hay Vida en Jesús ... is proclaimed along the Rio Paraná. In partnership with local churches, missionaries in the provinces of Santa Fe and Entre Rios are involved in starting new churches serving as a catalyst with the national pastors and local church members mobilizing and training them to reach their fellow Argentines with the Gospel.
